Note 2 - Some of the following information is likely to change as a new equality commission is being set up as part of new legislation (Equality Act 2006). The new commission will be known as the Commission for Equality and Human Rights and it will be effective from October 2007. It will cover race, gender, disability, age, religion and belief and sexual orientation. Race equality matters will still be covered by the Commission for Racial Equality - until the end of 2008.
